

Sarah SINGLA

Sarah Singla is a farmer from the South of France. She took over the family farm in 2010; the farm has been in a no-till system since 1980. Sarah was Nuffield scholar in 2011 traveling the world to enhance her knowledge about soil fertility, no-till systems and holistic approach to agriculture. Sarah is passionate and enthusiastic about her pursuits, she promotes a sustainable way of farming where economical, social and environmental aspects converge. As an inspirational voice for agriculture, she shares with passion her vision on soil restoration agriculture in France and abroad.

